

OBJECTIVES, STANDARDS, CRITERIA AND INDICATORS FOR THE AFRICAN PEER REVIEW MECHANISM (“THE APRM”)

1 INTRODUCTION

1.1 The African Peer Review Mechanism (“the APRM”) base document (AHG/235 (XXXVIII) Annex 2) defines the Mechanism as:

“An instrument voluntarily acceded to by Member States of the African Union as an African self-monitoring mechanism” and its primary purpose as:

“To foster the adoption of policies, standards and practices that lead to political stability, high economic growth, sustainable development and accelerated sub-regional and continental economic integration through sharing of experiences and reinforcement of successful and best practice, including identifying deficiencies and assessing the needs of capacity building.”

1.2 To ensure that the primary purpose is realised, the participating states have committed themselves to adopting appropriate laws, policies and standards, as well as building the necessary human and institutional capacity. They have also committed themselves to adopting specific objectives, standards, criteria and indicators for assessing and monitoring progress in key areas on a regular basis in accordance with the African Peer Review Mechanism base document and the Declaration on Democracy, Political, Economic and Corporate Governance (AHG/235 (XXXVIII) Annex 1) [“the Declaration”], as endorsed by the inaugural Summit of the African Union (AU) in Durban, South Africa in July 2002.

1.3 The overarching goal of the APRM is for all participating countries to accelerate their progress towards adopting and implementing the priorities and programmes of the New Partnership for Africa's Development (NEPAD), achieving the mutually agreed objectives and compliance with best practice in respect of each of the areas of governance and development. This can only be achieved through the sustained efforts of the country itself, involving all stakeholders. It requires that each country carefully develops a Programme of Action with time bound objectives and linked to national budgets to guide all stakeholders in the actions required by all – government, private sector, civil society – to achieve the country's vision.

1.4 However, given the differences of historical context and stages of development, countries will start from different base lines and will not be expected to reach their highest level of performance at the same time. The rate of progress will also depend critically on the level of commitment and political will of each country to take deliberate steps to realise its vision. Participating countries will encourage and support each other and exercise constructive peer dialogue and persuasion where necessary to ensure that all countries achieve full compliance by a mutually agreed date.

1.5 The participating countries will agree on goals and objectives to be achieved in respect of each of the areas covered by the APRM and about information to be shared. They will also agree on time frames of achieving the goals and objectives for each country or category of countries taking into account the situation at the time when the base review is conducted.

1.6 Sharing of information will focus on mutual learning in areas of high priority in NEPAD such as strengthening institutions of democracy and human rights, improving budgeting and financial management, fighting corruption, increasing access to social services such as education, health, water and energy. High priority areas also include improvement in agriculture and diversification of production and exports, increased trade and investment among the participating countries, increased cooperation in mobilising and attracting both domestic and foreign investment.

1.7 Sharing of information will result in increased adoption of best practices and standards and also accelerate the integration of the economies of participating countries. Higher levels of trust will also increase opportunities for intra-country trade and investment, physical infrastructure, production systems and structures and will also foster common African positions for negotiating with other regions.

1.8 To facilitate the measuring of performance and progress, this document identifies the following components in each of the four substantive areas of the Declaration (democracy and political governance, economic governance and management, corporate governance and socio-economic development): key objectives, standards, criteria and indicators.

1.9 First, the key objectives that have been prioritised in the NEPAD Framework Document and the Declaration are defined as specifically as possible. Then the codes and standards that are referenced in the Declaration are those agreed to by the African Union (AU) with regard to the area and key objectives of democracy and political governance and those that are internationally recognised with regard to other areas and the key objectives of governance and socio-economic development. It should also be noted that many of these codes or standards include detailed tools, templates and methodologies for self-assessment of compliance by countries. The APR Forum will review the codes and standards periodically.

1.10 The criteria are whether the government has taken the necessary steps to achieve the objective and attain the standards and the effects or results of these actions. Criteria have been articulated in terms of questions about these matters and can also be seen as issues to be addressed and reference points for targets to be established. Finally indicators are used as the means by which it is determined whether the criteria have been met.

1.11 This scheme of concepts that becomes increasingly specific as one moves from objectives to indicators thus provides a framework for the operationalisation of the assessments to be undertaken in the participating countries in the context of the APRM. The more specific the elements of the scheme become, the more important it becomes that the specifics of the country be taken into account in defining them. This document will thus only provide indicative criteria and some examples of indicators as the development of these components is a highly technical task and is best undertaken by those involved in the assessments at the country level in close consultation with the African Peer Review (APR) Secretariat technical staff. This scheme will allow a country's efforts and performance to be assessed against clear standards that have been agreed to in the African and/or the international contexts.

1.12 In the following sections this scheme of concepts – objectives, standards, criteria and indicators - is applied in each of the four areas identified in the Declaration:

- a. Democracy and Political Governance
- b. Economic Governance and Management
- c. Corporate Governance
- d. Socio-economic Development.

1.13 The purpose is to provide a clear framework to guide the design and implementation of the assessments in each of these areas. The key objectives in the area are first listed; then, for each objective, the standards, indicative criteria and some examples of indicators are articulated.

2 DEMOCRACY AND POLITICAL GOVERNANCE

2.1 Over the years, successive Summits of the Organisation of African Unity (OAU)/African Union (AU) have taken decisions aimed at ensuring democracy and good political governance. In particular, through the Constitutive Act of the African Union, Member States commit themselves, among others, to the objectives and principles of protecting and promoting democracy, good political governance, human rights and the rule of law. Consequently, the NEPAD Framework Document and the Declaration identify, among others, democracy and good political governance as preconditions and foundation of sustainable development and the eradication of poverty.

A. Key Objectives for Democracy and Political Governance

2.2 The overall objective is to consolidate a constitutional political order in which democracy, respect for human rights, the rule of law, the separation of powers and effective, responsive public service are realised to ensure sustainable development and a peaceful and stable society. The key objectives are:

- b. Measures of budgetary and fiscal decentralisation
- c. Adequacy and effectiveness of participatory practice in the country
- d. Availability of micro-credit to SMME's and rural communities

6 CONCLUSION

6.1 As stated at the outset, the purpose of these guidelines is to provide participating countries with a framework within which the APRM will take place and within which each country can carry out its own assessment as part of the APRM, with the assistance of the APR Secretariat and develop its Programme of Action to improve its governance and socio-economic development. This framework is enabling rather than prescriptive, specifying objectives and standards, providing indicative definitions of criteria and examples of indicators to ensure broad coherence in the country level work and uniformity at continental level.

6.2 As countries will be expected to accede to the APRM on a voluntary basis, this document will provide a basis and a guideline for those countries that are ready and willing to do so earliest. Later accessions will benefit from the experiences of the participating countries and the APR Secretariat. Participating countries will benefit in sharing policies, standards and practices that will lead to the improvement in governance and socio-economic development performance. In particular, participating countries will improve their self-reliance on and build capacity to manage their development and national economies. The intention is to learn by doing and to improve practice rapidly by sharing experience and best practice and finding solutions to common constraints.

6.3 The first cycle of the Peer Review process will enable participating countries to determine their initial baseline conditions, which will then become the baselines for the continental exercise, based on a careful review of each country's assessment of its own situation and its time-bound Programme of Action for improving its governance and socio-economic development performance.

6.4 The intention is that the first APR report for a country will provide a basis for assisting the country in improving its Programme of Action and for strengthening its capacities to accelerate progress towards its vision of excellence in performance in the areas being reviewed. It is hoped that the report will also provide a basis for consolidating shared values and standards in these governance areas and accelerating socio-economic development in Africa, leading to more rapid poverty eradication and achievement of the objectives of NEPAD and Millennium Development Goals.

6.5 It is expected that country efforts will be enhanced and strengthened by the APR process and that, after the first review, countries will sustain their efforts to achieve the shared objectives identified in the APRM and their Programmes of Action. This will require updating these Programmes of Action on a regular basis on the basis of self-monitoring results of their own progress and lessons learned from sharing with other countries, which will be facilitated actively by the APRM. On the basis of these activities it is anticipated that they will be able to establish new benchmarks and targets each year in terms of such concepts as outlined here.

Subsequent peer reviews will monitor progress against these benchmarks as defined in the countries' evolving programmes of action. If this happens, the APRM will have served its intended purpose.

End.
